No Touch Oil Change would like permission to provide a service to your employee's cars in your company parking lot.

With the spread of COVID-19, "No touch oil change's" technician perform an oil change on your employee car without entering the vehicle touching nothing inside the vehicle providing 100% chance your employee has to become infected from the transfer of COVID-19 from the technician hand from something the technician may have touched unknowably that was infected.

A typical oil change, your customer has to park the car, then a technician enters the car touching the steering wheel and other places to drive your employee 's car into the service bay for an oil change. Hopefully after the oil change your employee's car is effectively disinfected. A "No Touch Oil Change's technician" does not enter the car touching anything!

As your employee arrive at work on the day of the scheduled oil change, parking into a parking spot to allow a technician access to the front of the vehicle. Your employee pulls the hood latch to release the hood, lock the vehicle and proceeds into the building

Thirty (30) minutes after your employee has arrived at work, a No Touch Oil Change's technician will open the hood of your car, and use suction to pull all the used oil from your vehicle engine. After removing all the used oil, the car is jacked up on one side to allow the technician to spread out a large oil absorbate pad with a oil catch pan underneath the car to catch any oil that may escape while replacing the oil filter. All safety precautions are taken before the technician replace the oil filter.

Once the oil filter is removed, and replaced; the oil absorbate pad is removed then the car is lowered back onto the parking lot surface. The technician closed the hood of the vehicle completing the oil change. The technician did not enter the vehicle at any time, and your employee is safe from losing any time at work from COVID-19. Your employee' car is being properly maintained to provide dependable transportation for coming to work.

No Touch Oil Change provide a Win-Win solution for your company and your employee. Your Employee save time from having to have an oil change after work or on the weekend. Your company employee keeps a properly maintained vehicle for getting to work, and eliminating the possibility of becoming infected with COVID-19 from a simple oil change bringing the epidemic into your company work space.
